NEW THIS YEAR...

1. Digital poster sessions
The poster competition has gone digital! Residents, fellows, trainees and students who are enrolled in a program in Florida are welcome to submit their posters. This year, accepted posters will be displayed on monitors in the poster hall on Saturday, February 18. More information about the FSP digital poster competition can be found on page 5 and on the conference website.

2. Mobile app
The conference will feature an app that will include all educational content and conference updates for attendees. Please make sure to check your emails for more information coming soon about how to download the app in preparation for the meeting. Make sure to bring your device; the app will replace a printed syllabus. The app is compatible with laptops, tablets, and mobile devices.

3. Interactive microscopy course and case presentations
The conference will feature an interactive microscopy session on Saturday, February 18. During this session, pathology experts from across Florida will review challenging patient cases in an intimate, interactive learning environment. Attendees will have the opportunity to hear the case presentations, deliberate with colleagues in roundtable discussions, and ultimately present their diagnosis to the panelists and commentators.

4. Innovation labs
Learn about cutting-edge products and services during the newly added innovation labs while you enjoy breakfast, dinner or hors d’oeuvres. Innovation labs are non-CME and occur in the morning or evening after the FSP sessions are over. Attending innovation labs will offer you the opportunity to further your education by understanding ground-breaking tools and services that are catered towards pathologists.

5. More exhibitors than ever
Interact and engage with fellow colleagues and exhibitors in the newly-expanded exhibit hall that will offer additional face time throughout the meeting. Visit the FSP website to see which companies are already signed up to attend.

This activity has been planned and implemented in accordance with the accreditation requirements and policies of the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education through the joint providership of the Florida Medical Association and the Florida Society of Pathologists. The Florida Medical Association is accredited by the ACCME to provide continuing medical education for physicians. The Florida Medical Association designates this live activity for a maximum of 11.25 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

CRITERIA FOR SUCCESS
Statements of credit will be awarded based on the participant’s attendance at each session and submission of the activity evaluation form. A statement of credit will be available upon completion of an online evaluation/claimed credit form at www.flpath.org/claimcme. If you have questions about this CME/CE activity, please contact the FSP at 904-309-6261.

ACTIVITY FORMAT
Live

TARGET AUDIENCE
This activity is designed to meet the needs of practicing physicians, pathologists, and other specialists involved with anatomic pathology.

STATEMENT OF NEED
The field of anatomic pathology is constantly changing, and many of the most important advances in the field are presented at clinical meetings and within clinically oriented journals and often missed by pathologists. In the setting of new technology, techniques and advancements in the field, practice gaps are inevitable. As such, pathologists require ongoing educational opportunities to stay current in order to maintain and improve their knowledge and competence in the field.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES
At the conclusion of this activity, all participants should be able to:
• Examine grading systems and new criteria for pathologic diagnoses in the areas covered.
• Appraise the proper application of immunohistochemical and other molecular techniques for the diagnosis of problematic cases.
• Evaluate the most recent histopathological classifications of various gastrointestinal neoplasms.
• Differentiate between chronic pancreatitis and ductal adenocarcinoma.
• Describe the key distinguishing features of the most common solid neoplasms of the pancreas.
• Explain how nuclear features can aid in the diagnosis of solid neoplasms of the pancreas.
• Examine the key distinguishing features of the most common cystic neoplasms of the pancreas.
• Assess clinical, morphologic and immunophenotypic findings in diffuse large B-cell lymphoma recognized in the World Health Organization classification.
• Distinguish the three subtypes of marginal zone lymphoma recognized in the World Health Organization classification.
• Analyze entities that can mimic various types of lymphoma.

COMMERCIAL SUPPORT
At the time of this printing, a complete listing of commercial supporters (financial or in-kind) was not available. Appropriate acknowledgement will be given to all supporters at the time of the meeting.

PLANNER DISCLOSURES
The planners of this activity disclosed no financial relationships relevant to the content to be presented.
ABSTRACTS & DIGITAL POSTER HALL

The 2017 Florida Society of Pathologists (FSP) Poster Review Committee invites the submission of posters from residents, fellows, trainees and students for the Resident Digital Poster Competition at the Florida Society of Pathologists 2017 Annual Anatomic Pathology Conference, February 17-19, at the Disney’s Grand Floridian Resort.

The FSP Poster Review Committee will pre-judge posters on content. During the conference, the poster presentations will also be judged. The top three presenters (combined scores) will receive awards.

All posters must be submitted online via the ePosterBoards submission website, and authors must register online for the FSP 2017 Annual Anatomic Pathology Conference. For more details, please visit flpath.org/annual.

Poster Submission Deadline
Wednesday, January 11, 2017; 5:00 PM EST

Presentation Methods
All accepted posters will be displayed in the digital poster hall on electronic displays on Saturday, February 18, and poster presentations will be held between 7:45-8:30 AM and 10:35-11:05 AM. Authors will be assigned a time to present their posters to the judge.

More information can be found on the website at flpath.org/annual.
